

The Intelligencer

Office Nos. 25 and 27 Fourteenth Street.

Persons leaving the city for the season, and summer residents, can have the DAILY INTELLIGENCER mailed to them, postpaid, for 50 cents per month, the postage being charged on orders received.

Our friends across the river gave unrestricted immigration a beautiful black eye. No papers need apply!

The Toledo ticket is a young man's ticket and a soldier's ticket. There will be a good deal of rallying round the flag, boys, in Ohio this year.

A striking difference between the Cleveland convention and the Toledo convention is, that the latter named the men who are to succeed the present incumbents.

Those Democrats and Mugwumps who are wailing tears over Mr. Blaine in connection with the Toledo convention, may as well spare their weeps. Mr. Blaine is not "taking on" any.

Where the offerings were so abundant and so good, it must happen that some excellent men are disappointed. But the Toledo convention named a first rate, winning ticket, and the platform—that is all wool and a yard wide.

The President very considerably suggests that it is not necessary to send delegations with invitations. The mails are fairly regular, and invitations so received will have as much weight. This is a common sense view to take of it.

Yesterday the prosecution seemed disposed to put Baker on trial for playing poker in Steubenville. If this branch of the case is to be pushed, it would have improved Baker's chances if he had got a change of venue to Ohio county, where it would have been difficult to get a jury to convict.

Ohio Republicans have adopted a platform which hits the nail on the head every time. There is not a dodge in it. It plants the party squarely on every live question of the day.

Beginning appropriately with the tariff and giving special attention to wool, it protests against unrestricted immigration and takes strong ground on the correlated question of the disfranchisement of a large body of laboring citizens in the South.

It offers no apologies for favoring liberal pensions to the veterans of the Union cause, and the comments on the President's veto will touch the chord of sympathy in every soldier's heart.

It advocates the repeal of the internal revenue tax on tobacco. This is well so far as it goes, but while that tax is being abolished Congress should go further and wipe out the whole Internal Revenue establishment. The country does not need the revenue thus derived, which hurts rather than helps American industries.

The Lawyers in Convention.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.

DEKALB, Ga., July 28.—At the morning session of the Bar Association to-day Hon. W. T. Willey delivered a patriotic address on law and lawyers and the relation of the latter to the Government. This afternoon H. M. Russell read a very interesting paper on the lawyer in politics. Messrs. J. D. Ewing and J. J. Woods arrived this afternoon.

TOBACCO MARKET BOOMING.

Rema-Able Rise in Prices.—The Chief Cause is Speculative Enterprise.

NEW YORK, July 28.—The following is published here: "There is such an excitement among the tobacco dealers and manufacturers at the present time as has not been known for years, and prices for leaf tobacco have increased from 50 to 100 per cent. during July, and the end is not yet. Manufacturers have been sending up their prices in response to the demand made upon them by the controllers of the leaf supply. On plain tobacco alone, the dealers have advanced their whole sale price nine cents per pound during the past three weeks. Other manufacturers have kept pace with them, and western manufacturers who initiated the rivalry of prices a few years back have not been able to keep out of the present movement. The causes of the increase are complex, but the chief immediate cause is speculative enterprise."

Want a Rest from Committee.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The President to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris, saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the President to visit that city during his western trip. The President telegraphed to Senator Harris, in reply, to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he was always pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the Capitol he feared that the visit of the Memphis delegation would be a waste of time, as the Memphis delegation would be invited to visit the President at the White House.

FORAKER

AGAIN LEADS OHIO REPUBLICANS TO VICTORY.

A Soldier Ticket Nominated to Sweep the Field.

SOUND DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES.

Liberal Pensions to Union Soldiers and Protection to American Industries.

PROTEST AGAINST PAUPER IMMIGRATION.

Senator Sherman Endorsed Without Dissent and Everybody Comfortable.

FOR GOVERNOR.
J. B. FORAKER, of Hamilton County.
FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR.
W. C. LYON, of Licking County.
FOR ATTORNEY-GENERAL.
E. W. POE, of Wood County.
FOR TREASURER OF STATE.
J. C. BROWN, of Jefferson County.
FOR BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.
C. A. FLETCHER, of DeWitt County.
FOR JUDGE OF SUPREME COURT (long term).
W. T. SPEAR, of Trumbull County.
FOR JUDGE OF SUPREME COURT (short term).
F. J. DICKMAN, of Cuyahoga County.

TOLEDO, O., July 28.—The Republican State Convention was called to order at 10 o'clock by Temporary Chairman Ryan. The Committee on Credentials and Rules reported, and Ex-Governor Charles Foster, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, read the platform.

[The platform will be found on the third page of this morning's issue.]

GREAT ENTHUSIASM.

The tariff plank was received with loud cheers; all received more or less applause. When the endorsement of Governor Foraker's administration was reached, the convention cheered as one man, many rising to their feet and swinging flags, etc. Loud calls were made for Foraker. The rebel flag clause revived the demonstration.

When the last resolution, the famous Sherman endorsement, was reached, the cheering broke out again. It was done unanimously, without a dissenting voice. Tremendous cheering followed, and loud calls were made for Sherman. He did not appear, and the report of the Committee on Credentials and Rules was read.

Mr. Sherman was named as the permanent Chairman. A committee of three was appointed to conduct Mr. Sherman to the chair.

The Convention was in a good humor, being jubilant over the endorsement of the platform by the State Convention.

Mr. Sherman's speech was as follows:

MR. CHAIRMAN, GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION, AND LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—I thank you with all my heart for the high compliment of presiding over this historic assembly. I think the voice of Ohio, in this respect, have been partial to me, and I am called on this occasion to preside because I attended the first Republican convention of Ohio where the Republican party was born, and I have watched and wondered and followed its splendid history and its magnificent progress from that day to this. And now, fellow citizens, I congratulate you upon the fact that the body of you who are here today have been done by the people of Ohio; all you have to do is to record and announce the results of their decisions. In every county in Ohio, in every township, in every section and in every district, a voice came to us from the unanimous mouths of the Republicans of Ohio, for the renomination of Governor Joseph B. Foraker. [Applause.]

GOOD WORDS FOR FORAKER.

No man was ever presented as a candidate with more hearty, generous and frank endorsement than he; and he deserves it, because he has fairly earned this nomination at your hands. He has been patriotic, able, brave and diligent. He has been watchful of the interests of the people of Ohio in all the important duties intrusted to him. In his social duties, he belongs to the Governor of Ohio, the body of you who are here today, and to the rest of the people of Ohio, and therefore we, the Republicans of Ohio, take pride in this endorsement of him by our unanimous convention.

In respect to the rest of the ticket, I wish only to announce that the people of Ohio owe to the recent (or present) Legislature—the Sixty-seventh General Assembly—the Sixty-eighth General Assembly, and the Sixty-ninth General Assembly, the whole of it, the best and ablest and most patriotic and useful body that has made laws for the people of Ohio since the State was born. [Cheers.]

A PATRIOTIC LEGISLATOR.
Called to other duties I have recently examined the proceedings of the Ohio Legislature, and I have been amazed at the amount, volume and value of the work that it did. The Union soldier is on almost every page of that volume, the record of his labors, his sacrifices and his services. They were also watchful for the rights of labor and the laboring man, who after all is the foundation of our structure and whose reasonable demands ought always to be heard and always to be heeded. [Applause.] It did its duty, and I am glad to pay my compliments to this Legislature about to pass out of power, and to appeal to you as Republicans how important it is that the next Legislature should be equal to the last; and I trust you will remember that that election is of even more importance than the election of a State ticket.

You elected a Democratic Legislature only a little while ago, and I believe God will keep you from ever trying it again. [Cheers.] It was a Legislature tainted with fraud. It was blackened by election crimes. They left the State in debt with an ordinary expense unprovided for, and now when the people of Ohio are about to choose between a Democratic and Republican Legislature, all I ask is that you go back and investigate and examine the specimens which have been offered to you in the last four years by the Democrats of Ohio, and then make the contrast for yourselves. It ought to be exercised to promote harmony and good will and friendship among Republicans. Now, my countrymen, again thanking you for the honor which you confer upon me, with all frankness, I think more of your unanimous praise this day uttered than I do of the office of President of the United States. [Prolonged cheering.]

My fellow countrymen, I believe that I stood before you tonight as a man of my life—and man, boy, living always in Ohio—that now, at this late period of it, the Republicans of Ohio for whose welfare I have devoted so much of my life, are giving me so much for me. [Tremendous applause.]

THE NOMINATIONS.

Foraker Renominated by Acclamation—The Balance of the Ticket.

Dr. Graydon, of Cincinnati, took the platform and nominated Governor Foraker for his second term in a ten-minute speech. There was much cheering and the motion was carried by acclamation amid a whirlwind of cheers.

A committee was appointed to escort Governor Foraker to the hall, and the nomination for Lieutenant Governor was proclaimed for William C. Lyon, of Hamilton County.

Hon. A. Bushnell, of Springfield, was named, but declined because of important business interests, which would render it impossible for him to accept the nomination. Senator Thomas J. Pringle, of Springfield, then was named as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

At this moment Governor Foraker was escorted to the platform, amid cheers. He accepted the nomination for Governor, and made a brief speech, in which he made answer to some charges against him made by the Democratic platform recently adopted.

He reviewed the financial record of the last Democratic Administration and compared it with Republican management, to refute the charge that his Administration was unbusinesslike. He went over a number of similar topics in Ohio politics, referring closely to the Democratic Administration, and talking a salute of one hundred guns being fired outside in honor of his renomination.

Congressman McKinley then placed in nomination for Lieutenant Governor, Hon. H. A. Conrad, of Stark County, President of the Ohio Senate.

This closed the nominations and a ballot was taken, resulting in the nomination of Captain W. C. Lyon, of Newark.

Judge William Spear, of Trumbull, was nominated for Supreme Judge (long term) by acclamation, and Judge F. H. Dickman was re-nominated for the short term.

Hon. E. W. Poe, of Wood County, was nominated Auditor of State, and O. B. Brown, of Jefferson, for State Treasurer. For member of Board of Public Works Hon. C. A. Fletcher, of DeWitt County, was nominated.

The Convention adjourned at 3:20 P. M.

THE NOMINEES.

The following list of successful candidates in Republican Ohio.

Joseph B. Foraker, the nominee for Governor, needs no introduction to the people of Ohio. He was born July 18, 1846, among the hills of Highland county, O., in a log cabin. His early life was spent on the farm, and he had few of the advantages of the boy of to-day. At the age of sixteen, on July 14, 1862, he enlisted as a private in Company A, Eighty-ninth Ohio Infantry, being the first man named in the roll of the regiment.

His bravery and devotion to duty won for him rapid promotion. January 24, 1863, he was made second lieutenant, and on February 1, 1863, first lieutenant. He was afterward breveted captain for gallantry in the campaign in Georgia and South Carolina.

The war over, young Foraker returned to the farm. He went to school a time at Salem, Ross county. For two years he studied at the Delaware Wesleyan University, and then at Cornell University, graduating in the classical course July 1, 1869, and his first class. He studied law with Judge James H. Moore, of Cincinnati, and in the fall of 1869 was admitted to the bar. He has since been a successful lawyer.

He entered public life in April, 1869, when he was elected judge of the Superior Court of Cincinnati, holding the office for three years, when he resigned. In 1863 he was nominated for Governor of Ohio, but the Republican ticket was defeated. He was elected Governor of Ohio in 1875, and made a grand campaign, but the whistled ticket was carried. He was elected to the office again in 1885, being re-elected on a second trial. He was triumphantly elected and his administration has been all that the people could desire. As chief executive of Ohio Foraker has been wise, honest, dignified, and courageous on all occasions.

William C. Lyon, the nominee for Lieutenant Governor, was born of Irish parentage in Homer, Medina county, O., July 7, 1841. He worked on a farm until he was fourteen years of age, when he went out to an apprenticeship to learn the shoemaker's trade, at which he worked until the breaking out of the civil war. He enlisted as a private in April of 1861 at Seville, O., and went into Camp Taylor at Cleveland. He served through the war in the famous Twenty-third O. V. I., commanded by General Rosecrans, General Campton, President Hayes and General Comly, and was mustered out of service with the rank of captain in the latter part of April, 1865, after having been confined in rebel prisons at Libby, Macon, Charleston, Columbia and Charlotte for thirteen months. He moved to Newark in 1869 and was appointed postmaster in that city in 1871, in which position he remained nearly nine years. He was appointed Treasurer of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home by Governor Foraker and is now a member of that board. He is editor of the Daily and Weekly News, and is well known in the whole of the State.

William Thomas Spear, nominated for the Supreme Court, long term, was born in 1827, in which position he remained nearly nine years. He was appointed Treasurer of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home by Governor Foraker and is now a member of that board. He is editor of the Daily and Weekly News, and is well known in the whole of the State.

Four Bathers Drowned.
LOWELL, MASS., July 28.—Katie Callahan, Della Welch, Mattie Keating, Maggie Toomey and Lucy Callahan were bathing this afternoon in the Concord river at North Hallow, when the water was unusually high and strong. The current carried them beyond their depth. Before assistance could be rendered the first four named were drowned. Lucy Callahan being alone saved. The girls were ranged from 12 to 14 years.

A Case for Judge Little.
NEW YORK, July 28.—A little seven year old girl named Polly Giles, of 517 West Twenty-third street, this city, was criminally assaulted this morning, by two colored boys named Port. The boys were arrested, their victim was not yet recovered from the effects of the assault.

A BRIDGE GIVES WAY.
And Causes Another Fatal Accident on the B. & O. Road.
PITTSBURGH, July 28.—At an early hour this morning, while engine No. 517, attached to a mixed freight train, was passing over the Mount Savage bridge, a few miles west of Cumberland, Md., on the Pittsburgh Division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, the structure gave way, and the engine and several cars were precipitated into the water, which had been swollen at the headwaters. Engineer William Driscoll and fireman William Payne were instantly killed. Their bodies are still under the wreck. A brakeman, the name was not learned, was severely injured. The accident was the result of the bridge having been damaged by the sudden rise in the stream, which caused the structure to give way under the weight of the locomotive.

The Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph, of yesterday, says that at the office of the company in charge of the bridge, the following information in regard to the accident is given: The accident occurred at about 10 o'clock, and was the result of the bridge having been damaged by the sudden rise in the stream, which caused the structure to give way under the weight of the locomotive.

VAN BAKER

CALLS ON GOD TO WITNESS

That he is Innocent of the Crime of Murder.

He Stands a Rigid Cross-Examination

Without Deviating from his Original Version.

Denials and Explanations of the Testimony.

He is Confused Slightly once, but only Once.

A Wheeling Microscopist to Testify To-day.